PEABODY ACADEMY OF SCIENCE, 161 Essex street. Ethnological and natural history collections; museum of East India Marine Society; geological, minerological, botanical and natural history collections of Essex county. Founded by George Peabody, of London, 1868. Open from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

At the building of the Peabody Academy of Science some officer of the museum will be in attendance during the day, from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M., to give any information which may be required regarding the collections.

CADET ARMORY, 136 Essex street. Formerly residence of Col. Francis Peabody. Banquet room, etc. On this spot stood the house of Governor Bradstreet.

PLUMMER HALL, 134 Essex street. Library of Salem Athenæum. W. H. Prescott, the historian, was born in a house which stood on this spot. The house was built by Nathan Read, M. C., who invented a steamboat before Fulton. The present building was erected for library purposes from funds bequeathed to Salem Athenæum by Miss Caroline Plummer. The land on which it stands was once the property of Emanuel Downing.

OLD FIRST MEETING HOUSE, built in 1634, now in rear of Plummer Hall. Roger Williams was settled over the First Church from 1631 to 1635. The celebrated Hugh Peters and John Higginson also preached in this building.

ESSEX INSTITUTE, 132 Essex street, built for a private residence in 1851. Occupied by the Essex Institute in 1887 and owned by that society. Historical relics, including portraits, MSS., etc. Library, local and general. The rooms of the Essex Institute will be open to the Thought and Work Club and its guests from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M., Saturday, May 5th, and a committee of members of the Institute will be in attendance during the day to extend the courtesies of the Institute to visitors. At 10 o'clock the party will leave the Essex Institute for a drive to points of interest, as follows:—

HAWTHORNE'S BIRTHPLACE, 21 Union street. He was born here July 4, 1804.

DERBY-WARD HOUSE, foot of Herbert street, showing gambrel roof.

CUSTOM HOUSE, Derby street, where Hawthorne began his "Scarlet Letter." The desk upon which he wrote is in the Essex Institute.

RICHARD DERBY, SEN., HOUSE, third below the Custom House, on Derby street. Built about 1745; one of the earliest brick houses in Salem.

TURNER HOUSE, 34 Turner street, built about 1670 and a favorite haunt of Hawthorne. This is called "The House of the Seven Gables." It is a house where Hawthorne was known to visit, and here he frequently took tea with the owner and occupant, Miss Susan Ingersoll.

NARBONNE HOUSE, 71 Essex street, built about 1680, showing lean-to roof.

WASHINGTON SQUARE (Salem Common), showing style of houses built early in this century. In this vicinity (Winter street) lived Justice Story, and in this house, still standing, the eminent poet and sculptor, W. W. Story, was born.

BIRTHPLACE OF NATHANIEL BOWDITCH, rear of 14 Brown street.

OLD WARD HOUSE, 38 St. Peter street, showing projecting second story.

SITE OF WITCHCRAFT JAIL, 4 Federal street.

OLD BAKERY, 23 Washington street, built about 1670 (showing projecting second story).

COURT HOUSES, in Federal street, where the witchcraft records are to be seen, and many portraits, including Hunt's famous portrait of Chief Justice Shaw. Law library.

NORTH BRIDGE, North street. Scene of Leslie's retreat, February 26, 1775.

PEIRCE HOUSE, 80 Federal street, designed by Mackintire. Fine specimen of colonial architecture.

GALLOWES HILL, rear of Boston street. The scene of nineteen witchcraft executions in 1692.

SALEM PUBLIC LIBRARY, corner of Essex and Monroe streets. Formerly the mansion of John Bertram.

PICKERING HOUSE, Broad street, built 1651. Birthplace of Col. Timothy Pickering.

SHATTUCK HOUSE, 315 Essex street. Home of Shattuck the dyer, time of witchcraft delusion. Built before 1660.

ROGER WILLIAMS HOUSE, corner of Essex and North streets—the latter was originally called in deeds "Mr. Williams lane." This house was built before 1634, and was occupied by Judge Corwin at the time of Salem witchcraft. Sometimes called "Old Witch House."

TOWN HOUSE SQUARE. Site of building in which, on Oct. 5, 1774, assembled the First Provincial Congress, which passed a vote renouncing the authority of the British parliament.

OLD CUSTOM HOUSE BUILDING, Central street.

FATHER MATHEW MONUMENT.

DR. GRIMSHAWES HOUSE, where Hawthorne's wife lived before marriage. This house is described in Hawthorne's story of "Dr. Grimshawe's Secret." Adjoining Charter street cemetery.

CHARTER STREET BURIAL GROUND, the earliest burial place in Salem. Gov. Simon Bradstreet (called the Nestor of New England) was buried here in 1697, and here lie buried the Brownes, Lyndes, Hawthornes, Turners, Parkmans, Higginsons, and other leading families in Salem, of an early period.

Return to Essex Institute at 12.
